EQUALITY OHIO

No actions or statements occurring later than June 1, 2022 were factored into Equality Ohio's scores.

Paid for by Equality Ohio, a 501(c)4 advocacy and education organization dedicated to pursuing the lived and legal equality of LGBTQ+ Ohioans.

Most Consequential Race: Ohio Supreme Court

What's at stake: The Ohio Supreme Court is the top arbiter of Ohio's state constitution and laws. Each is elected to a 6-year term. The state's highest Court is an important check on the other branches of government.

Why it matters: Two million cases go through our state court system yearly, and the Ohio Supreme Court will hear around 1,500 of them. Whether it's ruling that the school funding formula is unconstitutional, or sending gerrymandered maps back to the Ohio Redistricting Commission, these seven Justices decide the fate of Ohio's most consequential legal disputes.

Impact on LGBTQ+ Rights: The Ohio Supreme Court will hear cases that involve LGBTQ+ issues, litigants, and rights. We must have Justices who understand LGBTQ+ people, support equality, and are willing to uphold LGBTQ+ civil rights.

Types of Disputes the Ohio Supreme Court Decides:

- The constitutionality of laws passed at the state and local level
- Cases involving election disputes and redistricting
- Questions of public or great general interest
- Death penalty and other felony cases
- Administrative agency appeals

Leaders When it Counted in the 134th General Assembly

Senator Nicki Antonio (Dist. 23) is Ohio's first openly LGBTQ+ legislator and has been a true champion for equality. She has sponsored the Ohio Fairness Act for over a decade and championed other affirming bills. She is pushing to modernize Ohio's HIV laws to reflect advances made in HIV medical care and continues to promote smart legislation that respects civil rights for all.

Representative Brett Hillyer (Dist. 98) has been a consistently strong advocate for LGBTQ+ equality in Ohio. As a primary sponsor of the Ohio Fairness Act, Hillyer has led by example by using his pulpit through op-eds, public statements, one-on-one conversations with policy makers, and engagement with LGBTQ+ leaders to highlight the importance of bipartisan collaboration to build inclusivity in Ohio.

Representative Phil Robinson (Dist. 6) has proven he is a reliable ally for LGBTQ+ Ohioans. More than once this session, Robinson spoke on the House floor to express unapologetic support for transgender youth athletes. Robinson has shown leadership by boldly standing up to fellow representatives who attempted to cram harmful, extreme anti-trans provisions into unrelated legislation.

Senator Matt Dolan (Dist. 24) has been unwavering in his commitment to passing nondiscrimination protections for LGBTQ+ Ohioans. As a cosponsor of the Ohio Fairness Act, Dolan has insisted that the OFA is imperative for a thriving economy. Dolan knows what the majority of Ohioans know: protecting LGBTQ+ Ohioans is a nonpartisan goal.

Representative Beth Liston (Dist. 21) has been a fierce ally of transgender youth in committee hearings, on the House floor, and in the public sphere. Liston has gone toe-to-toe with people who push extremist anti-trans policies and has utilized her knowledge of science and medicine to make sure misinformation doesn't go unchecked. Let's just say, we're glad there's a doctor in the House.

Representative Michael Skindell (Dist. 13) has been a vigilant defender of LGBTQ+ equality. He has sponsored the Ohio Fairness Act for over a decade, and when transgender youth were at risk of losing access to sports through a last-minute amendment to an unrelated bill, Skindell boldly protested right on the statehouse floor.
